

Echobubbles – building interactive spaces

We welcome Echobubbles as new ISEP member! Founded in 2021 by Islington-based Carl Guyenette and Alex Winterbotham, as a response to Covid's shock to the physical experiences and events industry, Echobubbles' vision is to create interactive and spatial online worlds for individuals and companies who want to explore, play, socialise and learn.

They create easy to access, unique and immersive 3D worlds for all purposes – all 100% online. This includes face-to-face video, presentations, sharing documents, live-streaming music and video to bring dynamism to our online worlds. They are a registered social venture currently supported by Cambridge Judge Business School, committed to lowering carbon emissions through online ecologically-friendly event production – they pledge to publish quarterly events carbon emission savings on their website, whenever available.

They work with clients ranging from Amazon to RMRK, building bespoke online metaverse solutions ranging from ticketed online socials to virtual corporate away days.
